THE Galveston Journal refers to the matter of electing school trustees and intimates that there is much apathy in regard to the subject, considering its importance. No salary is attached to the office, hence there is a great scarcity of candidates.— The Journal says as the case now stands the friends of education are as silent as the tomb; they are too much engaged in getting deep water and expanding the multitudinous interests of the city to give a thought to the claims of the rising generation.
Galveston has been very slow in adopting the free school system, but if they ever get it in operation they will not abandon it.
